Last spring Shawn Berreth came within an inch of his life.

It's amazing what a difference an inch can make. For Shawn Berreth, a wheat grower from Beiseker, Alberta it was the difference between a field that emerged properly and one that failed to thrive. Failure would have been a financial disaster for him. And his family. Knowing that extreme precision was a must, Shawn seeded with a Morris Contour Drill featuring an independent contour opener with parallel linkage for ultra-precise seed and fertilizer placement. Each opener moves independently of the frame, and of each other, to closely follow every contour of your land. To learn how Shawn's Morris drill can work for you, visit our website or your nearest dealer.
